The year was 1973. A new kind of theme restaurant opened in San Diego that combined live performance on a theatre pipe organ with an Italian food menu (mainly pizza). It was called

“ORGAN POWER PIZZA”

The young theatre organists pictured above were hired to play lunch and eventually dinner hours as the chain grew. Ultimately, there would be three simultaneous San Diego County locations, the largest being in Pacific Beach featuring the V/27 “Touring” Moller pictured above. The concept lasted only six years, but left its mark on the musical life of San Diego.

We thought our organ friends would enjoy something different so we are going to recreate the experience once again by bringing a digitally sampled Allen theatre organ to a real pizza restaurant where WAYNE, CHERYL, JIM AND CHRIS will take REQUESTS just like the “old days at Organ Power.”

Directions: Giovanni's is at the southwest intersection of Ruffin Rd and Clairemont Mesa Blvd. second stoplight west of Interstate 15.
